GRADE 9 POETRY

THE RINK

Five years old you went for your first skate
You have just determined your fate
The rinks become your second home
The place where you never felt alone

The rink becomes your only care
It is where you grew your first hockey hair
The rink is where you found your way
Time seemed to pause then play

With each stride on frozen ground
In the rink your passion was found
On the ice, you found your fire
Hockey was your deepest desire

From just being able to wobble
To weaving through opponents, your love began to double
In that arena, you began to take flight From wobbling to becoming a pro, was in sight

Now when you stand there and the journeys complete
Surrounded by your family, the victory is sweet
